

Family relationships in the workplace may create situations where the College's professional objectivity or its reputation is compromised, or may otherwise jeopardize a professional work climate. The College does not permit such relationships to the extent they interfere with or otherwise influence – in appearance or in fact – employment matters, including performance evaluations, promotions/career progression, work assignments, or the work environment.